Colours represent certain feelings and personality.

- Green is relaxing/environmentally friendly
- Blue is cool
- Red is assertive,
- Yellow is sunshine

Personality Profiles give guests the opportunity to find out more about themselves, their work colleagues and customers

Carl Jung created a personality profile based on the 4 key colours. This assessment has become a staple component of team building, team development, leadership sessions and personal development in the workplace.

Huxley offer a really simple, quick online personality profile assessment which comprises of scenario specific questions. You are asked how likely or unlikely you are to do something in that situation focusing on your 'normal' working environment and your 'stress' working environment.

Personality Profiling Experience Includes

- Complimentary Personality Profile Assessment for lead client
- Expert facilitator
- Personality Profile Assessment per person
- 45-60 Virtual Interactive session with different tasks (1 ½ hours physical attendance)
- Personality tasks in a friendly team atmosphere
- Directory of Personalities-post event

Normal (work)

OLIVE

A blend of Yellow & Blue

You are likely to have dry sense of humour and operate in a systematic and yet flexible way. You probably have a strong sense of irony and the sardonic.

Predictable but innovative, stable and yet adaptable, you hold these contrasts well. You are likely to be consistent and liked by many as a steady performer but with a glint in the eye for slightly wild, wicked and naughty!

Stress (work)

OLIVE

A blend of Yellow & Blue

You are likely to become stubborn and possibly sarcastic in stress using dry and cynical humour to reveal your feelings. Your likely stress reactions are 'frolic' where you focus on activity not results or 'freeze' where you do the opposite and pause to consider.

An example of someone who is Olive normally and under stress.
